Connecting Ice-Dealer Sullivan with the Cronin Tragedy.

His Indictment and That of Coughlin and Woodruff Had Been Expected

A Witness Who Saw Him Pay Money to the Cottage Renter.

The Police Still Earnestly Following the Promising Clues.

Further Ideas Concerning the Murderous Conspiracy Against the Doctor.

ferental to the evening world.)
CHICAGO, May 29.—The Cronin case is practically at a standstill to-day, at least so far as any publicly active efforts on the part of the authorities are concerned, though, of course, the work of following up various clues that the police have in their possession goes bravely on.

The indictment late vesterday afternoon of Ice-Dealer Sullivan, Detective Coughlin and Woodruff, the man who has been in jail two weeks on suspicion of knowing something about the trunk, the discovery of which first put the police on the right track in the Cronin case, was expected.

The only evidence presented to the jury that had not previously been given in these despatches was the positive statement by old man Carlson and his wife that, after the cottage in which Cron'n was killed had been rented by the mysterious strangers, these men went directly to Ice-Dealer Sullivan's house, not more than three hundred feet house, not more than three hundred feet away, presumably for the purpose of having a consultation with the proprietor.

On another occasion the men not only went to Sullivan, but the Carlsons saw Sullivan meet them at the door of his house, and after some conversa ion between the four, Sullivan drew from his pocket a roll of bills and handed one of the visitors some money.

The man who took it was the one who had just paid the Carlsons the second month's rent for the cottage.

Heretofore it has not been supposed that the Carlsons knew anything that would the Carlsons the second month's rent for the cottage.

Heretofore it has not been supposed that the Carlsons knew anything that would directly implicate Sullivan as being acquainted with the men who hired the cottage, and as he had denied all knowledge of them, this testimony only adds another to the long list of lies that he has already been convicted of telling; and, so far as the present status of the case goes, Mr. Sallivan is in the mire deeper than any of the three men against whom indictments have been returned, though Detective Cough in is badly enough off, his explanations of how he came to guarantee the man who hired the horse and buggy by means of which Cronin was taken from his office to the Carlson continued in the street and did not for a moment suspect that he would be entrapped by such a scheme as they laid for him.

It is the general opinion here among influential Irishmen, who still claim that the Clan-na-Gael, as an organization, is not recame to guarantee the man who hired the horse and buggy by means of which Cronin was taken from his office to the Carlson cot-tage having been shown to be lies. There was no division of sentiment in the Grand Jury room as to the returning of the Grand Jury room as to the returning of the indictments for murder, and it is a fact worthy of note that the foreman of the jury is M. C. Hickey, a former Superintendent of Police and more or less identified with Irish affairs in general.

With the indictment of these men the war may be said to have begun in earnest, as from now on the defense will be obliged to show its hand; and when this is done it will not be difficult to make a good cuses as to where the

its hand; and when this is done it will not be difficult to make a good guess as to where the money for the defense comes from.

The prosecution will have no lack of funds, as in addition to the usual means employed by the Commonwealth there is also at command a sum of money amounting already to $50,000 that has been quietly subscribed by Irishmen who were friends of Cronin and there of the nationality who are opposed to the slaughter-house method evidently brought into play in this case.

WAS THERE A SECRET TRIAL?

BELIEF IN CHICAGO THAT DR. CRONIN WAS CONDEMNED TO DEATH.

Although it has been vigorously denied by all the leading members of the Order, the charge that the Clan-na-Gael Society as an organization is directly responsible for the murder of Dr. Cronin is being reiterated with so much persistence that it is reported that the police of Chicago are shadowing all the prominent members of the Order in that

On the other hand it is not denied that the reason for seeking the "removal" of Dr. Cronin was the fact that he possessed knowledge and proof of the villainy of those who professed to be friends of the Irish cause but who had betrayed its interests, and whom the exposures made by Dr. Cronin and his followers would eventually ruin.

DID THE ORDER SUPPORT IT? The only question now is whether the band of conspirators which plotted and decided upon the assassination of Dr. Cronin was supported by the Order in its murderous work, or whether, as most of the prominent Irishmen in this city believe, the murder was simply the work of a few individuals who, although they were members of the Society, although they were members of the Society, did not receive its sanction.

It is asserted very positively in Chicago that the Clan-na-Gael had a great deal more to do with the crime than the public now imagines, and that it was actually at its instance that Dr. Cronin was murdered.

The claim is made that a committee was regularly appointed to investigate the charge that Dr. Cronin was a British spy, and although the Doctor was never summoned to appear before this self-constituted judicial boily the evidence sgainst him was produced in the regular way and upon a secret ballot he was condemned to death. His death war-VERY GRAVE CHARGES.

rant was signed, it is said, with the scal of the Society, which being a revolutionary body made such laws and executed such penalties as it saw fit in any emergency.

The men who are instrumental in baving this farcical form of a trial carried out, it is said, were the leaders of the Sullivan faction, who formed the "triangle," which has been so often alluded to since it was suspected that the Clan-na-Gael was mixed up in the murder.

THE PROOF AGAINST CRONIN UNKNOWN.

The Proof they had against Cronin is not known, but it was sufficient to give some color of reason for the proceedings, which, it is said, were carried on secre by in the order itself, and were only known to the friends of the Sullivan faction in Chicago.

The job was a desperate one, and only a few were let into it, but these were sufficient to secure the sanction of the Society to the act, which was carried out by men chosen from outside of Chicago, and bound to secreey by the iron-clad oath of the order.

In this way, it is said, the real motives for putting Cronin out of the way, the personal spite against him and the danger of exposure that threatened the leaders of the Order so long as he remained alive, were screened by making it appear that it was really at the instance of the Society that he was removed and for political reasons alone.

TWELVE BAID TO HAVE BEEN IN THE PLOT.

It is charged now that there were at least twelve of the Chicago Clan-na-Gaels in the plot, and that its details were arranged with the most careful elaboration.

The intention was to completely destroy all trace of the crime that no evidence of it could trace of the crime that no evidence of it could never by any possibility be discovered.

Even the place of burial of the body was to be known only to one or two, and when once placed in its final resting place it would never have been disturbed. It would simply have been a case of mysterious disappearance, and after the first suspicions had blown over, nothing more would have been heard about it.

OTHERS DOOMED, TOO.

Officers browned from the second from the second fully disposed of the Secret Committee of the Clan-na. Gael, it is said, proposed to take up each of his objectionable associates in the same way, and thus gradually remove all opposition to the authority of the leaders, and put and end to the bitter fight which Cromm and Davy had lead expired these fields. and Devoy had lead against them for so long a time past.

It was owing to the bungling of some of the accomplices in the plot that the evidences of Cronin's death came out by the discovery of his body in the catch basin. Why it was thrown in there instead of being taken to the intended burial place is not known, but it is said that the unexpected appearance of a Chicago policeman on the scene of the murder had much to do with the change of plan and led to the hustling off of the body and the dumping of it into the first convenient place that offered.

WILL THE FULL PLOT BE CARRIED OUT ? Whether the same clique of conspirators whether the same chance of conspirators will attempt to carry out the ulot against the others, now that their crime has come to light, remains to be seen. If they are all Chicago men, as it is alleged, they cannot do much while under the surveillance of the po-

At least two of the other men they had in-tended to remove live in Chicago, while John Devoy and Dr. McCahey are said to be among the number.

It is thought that possibly the same men who butchered Dr. Cronin have had their instructions regarding the other proscribed men, and that the present watch upon the leaders of the organization will not prevent them from attempting to carry out their plans.

ential frishmen, who still claim that the Clan-na-Gael, as an organization, is not re-sponsible for the murder, although its secret machinery may have been used for the pur-pose, that if Dr. Cronin's body had not been discovered, the conspirators would have been able to go on with their work of assassina-tion without interruption or fear of detection.

WON'T LET TIM GOLDEN GO.

BYRNES SAYS HIS DETECTIVE IS ONLY FIFTY-NINE AND CAN'T BE RETIRED.

The sudden and totally unlooked-for act of the Police Board in retiring Detective-Sergt. Timothy Golden, of Inspector Byrnes's staff, by the Police Commissioners, has created a stir at Police Headquarters. Golden is hale and hearty notwithstanding his age, and his wonderful knowledge of that grade of criminals who infest financial centres makes him the right man in the right place on Wall street, where he is located.

Inspector Byrnes looks upon Golden as one of his most trusty lieutenants, and he feels his loss keenly.

The records in the Detective Bureau and in the Golden family Bible show that Tim is in the Golden family Bible show that Tim is fifty-nine years old, and not yet subject, therefore, to the rigors of the sixty-year clause, by which the Commissioners may, not must, retire members of the force.

In this case Inspector Byrnes, who is most deeply interested, was not consulted, but some busybody in the clerical department discovered that Golden was apparently sixty years old, reported the fact to a Commissioner and, despite his great usefulness and splendid record, Golden, without a moment's notice, was decapitated and placed on the pension list at $1,000 a year, but half the salary of a sergeant.

motice, was decapitated and placed on the pension list at $1,000 a year, but half the salary of a sergeant.

Inspector Byrnes says he will lay the facts before the Police Commissioners, produce the proofs of Golden's age, and he believes that on Friday the Commissioners will undoubtedly restore him to active duty.

Mistakes of this nature have occurred before and in each instance they have been remedied. Every vacancy created by retirement, resignation or dismissal means a vacancy on the active force and the Commissioners have so many more places for personal and political friends, but from present appearances no one will fill Golden's shoes for a year at least.

Golden looks like a well-to-do banker, and is a man of unusual intelligence. As far back as 1859 he was detailed as detective in the Sixth Precinct, and has been at Police Headquarters twenty-five years.

Merely a few of Golden's most noted achievements make a record which any man might be proud of.

In May, 1860, Golden convicted eleven porters in H. B. Claffin & Co.'s dry-goods store for conspiring to swindle the firm out of $15,000. Five months later he arrested Frederick Schacht for the murder of Thomas Kavaney at Pearl street and City Hall Place.

The renowned Jsmes T. Brady got him off with a short sentence and never defended a criminal afterwards.

Golden spent three years to collect evidence to justify him in arresting Peter and Mary Hefferman, expert shoplifters, who had accumulated $250,000. The wife pleaded coverture, and was discharged, and Hefferman, after spending $15,000, went to prison.

In 1864 Golden captured George F. Howe, the accomplice of Smith and Stevenson, the bogus bonded warehouse keepers, who borrowed $280,000 on spurious receipts.

Golden's great piece of detective work was in 1878, when he arrested Charles R. Beckwith, Thomas R. Lewis and Charles H. Ketchum, who by conspiracy, forgery, embezziement and falsification of accounts stole $206,000 from B. T. Babbitt, the Soap manufacturer, and Ellen E. Peck was taken into custody also, Lewis was followed to London by Golden and arrested. He disgorged $30,000 and Ketchum gave up $15,000.

Golden's next work was the arrest in 1879 of J. R. Robinson, who had secured $287,000 by forgery in Pennsylvania. He fled to London and thence to Spain, went to Lisbon and had set sail for Callao, when the veteran detective started on his trail. Golden neverlost sight of Robinson, and chased him up the west coast of South America, through Smith's Channel and the Straits of Magellan to Montevideo, Ruenos Ayres and Rio de Janeiro, where he was arrested and surrendered by Dom Pedro.

RECORDER SMYTH OVERRULES THE DE-MURRER TO THE INDICTMENT.

His Trial Set Down for Tuesday Next is Part III. of General Sessions Lawren Howe Argued that the Indictments Were Illegal District-Attorney Fellows Watches the Proceedings Closely.

In Part I. of the Court of General Sessions to-day Recorder Smyth listened to arguments on the demurrers to the indictments of felony and grand larceny found against Frank Templeman, who is charged with at tempting to get $1,000 by false pretenses and for subornation of perjury in attempting to

For subornation of perjury in attempting to procure false testimony that District-Attorney Fellows and Inspector Byrnes had conspired with Frivate Detective James E. Wilkinson to defraud the city.

W. W. Foster made the plea to-day.

He said it was not necessary or justifiable for the Commissiouers to pay a cent to Frank Templeman for any evidence, even if they were authorized to do so, which they were not.

They could not lawfully pay this man a cen, he declared.

Mr. Howe, who was hurriedly retained after Gen. Pryor retired from the case in a huff yesterday, stood up and, after paying a tribute to Inspector Byrnes's powers, said:

"This indictment of attempting to gain $1.000 by falsa protenges is precent and $1.000 by falsa protenges."

"This indictment of attempting to gain $1,000 by false pretenses is preposterous. There is no such crime as attempting to obtain money by false pretenses."

Recorder Smyth interrupted and said that attempted grand larceny was the charge.

'This is a very serious and important case and I think for reasons I have already stated that this case should go to trial at once,

'These questions which you have brought up are strange ones, and I think I must overrule the demurrer.'

Mr. Goff then moved to have the trial set down for Tuesday next in Part III. of the Court of General Sessions.

There are 12,000 stuffed birds which cannot be placed on exhibition. Among other things are four large boxes of skeletous and stuffed monkeys, an immense collection of shells, Chinese games, instruments and wearing apparel of the earlier periods, the stone axes of the lishop and Powell collection. Indian antiquities, skeletons of different chiefs of tribes of Indians of British Columbia. All of these are waiting places.

Am ng the interesting features to be placed in the new wing will be a case of stuffed chimpanzees, with the far-famed Mr. Crowley as the central figure.

Then there will be a collection of stuffed buffallos, different kinds and both sexes being represented. A large case of moose will also een removed for storage on account of lack of Stuffed Birds and Beasts Lucking MRS. LANGTRY AND HER COOK. She Is Tired of Being Blackmailed and Prefers to Fight the Suit.

Lawyer Bowers, Mrs. Langtry's attorney, to-day asked Judge Ehrlich, of the City Court, for an adjournment of the hearing in the case of Constave Broche, the Lily's cook, who is suing her for $257 for his services, until Friday. her for $257 for his services, until Friday.
Louis Mathel, counsel for Gustave, was in court. The Judge granted the motion.

"I shall see Mrs. Langtry this evening at 6," said Mr. Bowers. "I have just received a note from her. She will win, for the contract with the cook is as plain as the nose on your face. But Mrs. Langtry would rather pay more and have the case decided against the cook thas to compromise on a reasonable sum, because she is tired of being blackmailed and swindled right and left." and left.

Mr. Bowers hopes the case may be heard on Priday, but cannot tell until he sees Mrs. Langtry this evening.
